Dr. Smith Requests Appropriation of $2,500 to $4,500 for Work

A request that an engineer be employed this year to make an unbiased appraisal of the property of the Marion Water Co. was made last night by Mayor Smith at a conference with the council finance committee in the mayor's office to study municipal appropriations for the year.

The appraisal the mayor said appears to be the first logical step for the city in approaching its water rate problem.

It will be almost indispensable either in a rate fight before the state utilities commission or in possible negotiations for municipal purchase of the waterworks the mayor said.

The finance committee did not act on the mayor's proposal but the suggestion apparently was received with favor. Robert H. Stief, finance committee chairman, said he felt an appraisal was needed.

The city is to engage in a contract to consider municipal purchase of the water plant.

A decision by council on the mayor's proposal is expected Monday night when a tentative schedule of appropriations to operate the various city departments in 1937 will be submitted.

The mayor indicated he will make a vigorous appeal for an appropriation probably somewhere between $2,500 and $4,500 for the services of an appraisal engineer and assisted he will make a portion of his salary available for the appraisal.

Will Be Considered
The mayor said municipal purchase definitely will be considered as a possible solution of the water rate problem provided the city has opportunity to purchase the plant at an advantage to the city.

He said further consideration of municipal purchase will depend on the valuation fixed on the company's property. Interest rates at which the purchase could be financed and what benefit the city could hope to get through ownership of the plant.

There is no definite plan made at present to attempt to open negotiations for municipal purchase—an appraisal would be a prerequisite of any such movement the mayor said.

He renewed an earlier pledge that if any steps are taken toward municipal purchase Marion residents will be kept fully informed and will be given an opportunity to vote on the question before officials take any binding action.

It was recalled that the principal objections to the municipal purchase movement of 1935 and 1936 were the lack of an appraisal by a city engineer and the manner in which negotiations were carried on and the interest rate proposed for the city bonds to finance the purchase.

We've never in my opinion had an unbiased appraisal of the value of the plant in recent years the mayor asserted.

In addition to its value in consideration of municipal purchase an appraisal will be needed if the city is to uphold its end of the water rate controversy before the state utilities commission the mayor said. The company he continued recently said the city's voluminous lists of the various items that make up its property. The company is understood to be near completion of detailed records and reports it will file with the commission to support its contention that a schedule of rates proposed by the city would prove confiscatory. The next move in the rate fight is understood to be

NEW STEEL PLANT OFFICE IS READY FOR OCCUPANCY

Officials and Clerical Workers Will Move Into Building Saturday 140 Now Employed

Defiance Pressed Steel Co. executive and office workers are preparing to move into their newly constructed office building Saturday.

The 40-day contract job for the $15,000 office structure was finished three days ahead of schedule and is ready for occupancy.

Contract work also was virtually completed this week on pouring of 30,000 square feet of six-inch concrete flooring in the old four-story room of the Power Mfg. Co. which has been merged with the other parts of the Power building to provide work space for the new Marion industry. This improvement was made at a cost of approximately $6,000.

Although the steel department and the steering wheel departments are the only ones in operation at present, 140 persons are working at the plant. Sixty of them are in the steering wheel department which is in charge of Henry Murphy, former Marion mayor and former superintendent of the Marion Steel Sheet Co. shop.

Company officials estimated that equipment will be in place for production of metal stampings the company's biggest line in six to eight weeks.

In addition to the workers now employed directly by the company, approximately 50 others are employed at the plant on contract work preparing for operation of the stamping machinery which is being reconditioned following the burning of the company's plant at Defiance.

Concrete jigs for heavy stamping machinery were built into the new concrete floor in the south end of the plant. Some of the jigs are 15 feet deep and have 12 inch concrete walls.

First installations of machinery in this portion of the plant following the completion of the concrete floor work Wednesday were begun yesterday.

Officials will begin major plant operations with a general line of metal stampings and will begin production of automobile heaters around May 1 for the following winter use.

Chief Executive Agrees To Speak to Students in State Assembly Chamber

By The Associated Press
MADISON, Wis. Jan. 8.—Police were called today to eject University of Wisconsin students demonstrating against the ouster of President Glenn Frank from Gov. Philip La Follette's office when they had marched from the campus and broken up a press conference he was holding.

The students estimated at nearly 1,000 by onlookers marched from the university campus to the governor's office after they had been instructed by speakers including a young woman a last year's graduate who cried:

Are you going to stand by like a group of moral cowards?

The students entered so much disorder in the executive chamber that La Follette called upon the Madison police department for help.

Police Chief William McCullough arrived with 12 officers. With much shouting and commotion they cleared all of the demonstrators out of the room and a committee of two was admitted to see the governor.

The chief executive agreed after talking to the committee to address the students in the state assembly chamber.

Quiet was restored promptly after this assurance the students moved to the assembly room.

The demonstration started between the 3 and 4 o'clock university classes with a shout from a group of scornful girls: We want Frank.

In a few minutes 200 students paraded through Beaman hall, which houses the university administrative offices. They yelled music hall and the law building gathering recruits as they went along.

After they had made a tour of the campus the leaders called for a march on Gov. La Follette.

They examined into the executive offices and filed the main room off the governor's private suite.

Loudly they shouted we want Frank.

Gov. La Follette told a group of newsmen with whom he had been talking to wait inside his office while he conferred with a secretary on whether he should address the students.

A similar group created wild disorder at Frank's removal hearing in the regents meeting room at Beaman hall yesterday and last night.

They were the only ones out of the total enrollment of more than 10,000 who responded to a strike call which went through the night to fraternity sorority and independent houses.

Anonymous leaders had called upon all Greek letter houses by telephone to organize a mass demonstration in front of Beaman hall at 9 a. m.

Eden Calls Cabinet on Receipt of News Germans Fortify Morocco Port

By The Associated Press
LONDON, Jan. 8.—British cabinet ministers met today in a hurried session to discuss reports of German military activities across the straits from Gibraltar and the non-intervention problem in Spain.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden called the conference at 10 Downing street after a night discussion with Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin.

Reports of German supervised fortifications and of German long range guns at the Spanish port of Ceuta, Morocco—about 100 miles from Gibraltar—prompted the special party it was understood.

Reports Reported Landed
The British also heard that more than 1,000 armed Germans had arrived in the Spanish Moroccan zone 2,000 of them at Ceuta.

With the great home fleet preparing to join British Mediterranean warships near the coast of Spain, France and Great Britain were reported by informed sources to be considering direct action to isolate the Spanish war.

Urgent need of a quick workable peace plan was said to be realized to the fullest extent by British statesmen.

The cabinet has been called to meet next Wednesday under the leadership of Foreign Minister Anthony Eden who it was indicated will take no step in the troubled international situation until after that time.

Meanwhile official strokes in both England and France decried.

BUSINESS TOLD BY ROOSEVELT TO MAKE JOBS

Says Income and Outgo Will Be Equal if Employment Reduces Relief Load

WARNS NONE WILL STARVE

Forecasts $35,026,000,000 Debt Peak by June Despite Increased Revenues

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—President Roosevelt sent a multi-billion dollar budget to congress today in a message bluntly leaving a complete balance of Federal income and outgo up to industrial reemployment efforts.

With certain exceptions, Mr. Roosevelt told congress his new 1938 budget is in balance and would contain no later relief requirements do not exceed an estimated $1,537,123,000.

Then after forecasting a new public debt peak next June 30 of $37,000,000,000 despite sharply increased income the President added:

It is my conviction that if every employer or potential employer will undertake during the next six months to give employment to persons now seeking government help, the national budget can thereafter be kept continually in balance.

With just such cooperation on the part of the employers, the question of a balanced budget for 1938 must of necessity remain an open one for the very good reason that this government does not propose next year any more than during the past year years to allow American families to starve.

Mr. Roosevelt's budget message covering especially the 12 months beginning next July 1 but including also requests for money to carry relief through June 30 was read in both Senate and House by clerks. No new taxes were asked.

In launching the 1938 budget "in balance," the President allowed $1,537,123,000 for the year's relief costs and excepted a $101,516,000 appropriation law required for debt reduction.

Balanced Budget for 1938
But he stressed that if improvement in economic conditions continues at the present rate, the government would be able to attain in 1939 a completely balanced budget with full provision for meeting the statutory requirements for debt reduction.

Final figures on relief outlays were withheld until later. Mr. Roosevelt said about $650,000,000 of additional funds would be needed to carry on work relief through June 30.

Citing generally improving business conditions he forecast next year a surplus of $7,283,000,000. Thus eliminating $401,516,000 of debt retirement from the expenditure column income would match outgo for the first time since 1930.

The budget provided funds for no new governmental activities. It refrained in a promised message on administrative reorganization which Mr. Roosevelt said will undoubtedly result in some saving in expenditures.

Urges Tax Extensions
The executive recommended extension of a group of miscellaneous taxes scheduled to expire next June and July.

The predicted increase in public debt was attributed in part to the request for a supplemental appropriation of $700,000,000—$450,000,000 for relief and activities of the re-employment administration the remainder for relief obligations to be created this year and paid next.

Included also was a request for $100,000,000 to finance projected extension of the civilian conservation corps from March 31 to June 30. Mr. Roosevelt recommended that congress make the corps a permanent government agency.

The budget envisioned liquidation of the public works administration as such providing only $10,000,000 for administrative expenses in 1938.

But at a press conference it was explained the $200,000,000 PWA revolving fund would be used for loans and grants to municipalities during the remainder of this fiscal year whenever the money was employed to give work to persons on work relief rolls.

$451,000,000 for Public Works
For a general public works program next year including roads, rivers and harbors and such items the budget provided outlays of $451,000,000.

Revenue for the current year was forecast at $35,226,000,000 compared with a September estimate of $35,625,000,000 and actual income of $41,125,000,000 last year.

Predicted expenditures of $3,480,000,000 would show a $117,575,000 increase over the September estimate but a $299,196,000 drop under 1936 outlays.

The President said the 1938 revenue act "gives every indication of satisfactory accomplishment" its purposes. These aims were listed as replacement of revenues lost through

NEW ENGLISH QUEEN GOOD WHIST PLAYER

By The Associated Press
CHARDON, O.—England's new queen, Elizabeth, is a good whist player, David Henderson recalled today. He met Elizabeth, then 18, when he was convalescing from wounds suffered in the World war.

She and her sister, Lady Rose, visited the hospital at Glamis castle, near Dundee, and helped entertain the wounded soldiers and lighten their hours. Elizabeth frequently played whist and often Henderson was her partner at the card table. "She often mentioned that clubs were her lucky suit," said Henderson, now president of the Chamber of Commerce at Burton, near here.

The sodium sulfate is used to stabilize dirt and gravel highways, in experimental projects at the school. A majority of North Dakota's roads are of dirt or gravel construction.

A federal project, under supervision of Dr. O. T. Zimmerman of the school, is centering attention on the problem of eliminating dust, road boils and reduction of wind and water erosion by application of sodium sulfate.

In cooperation with the state highway department, dirt, clay and gravel from all sections of the state is being tested for adaptability in construction of all-weather dirt and gravel highways.

Somebody's Move

If it is Gov. Dixey's in his message to the new general assembly, the state's role of collection agency for local government should be abandoned. The question is: Who should make the first move?

Lawyers are likely to look at it this way. If local governments should take more money, thereby relieving the state in its role of collection agency for local government, the state's role of collection agency for local government should be abandoned.

The state's role of collection agency for local government should be abandoned. The question is: Who should make the first move? Lawyers are likely to look at it this way.

Gov. Dixey has put his finger on a real problem.

Appreciation

The last of the Christmas decorations are down and streets have reverted to a state of general drabness.

Perhaps if colored lights and holly wreaths were displayed the year round, they would become details of drabness themselves. But during the holiday season they furnish a sparkle which brightens the drabness of the year.

Outdoor lighting effects are particularly welcome during the holidays. They do not need to be pretentious, though elaborate displays are a delight to the eye. Their value is the friendliness they make manifest to the passerby who is made to understand that there is a household whose members have gone out of their way to add something to the community's enjoyment of Christmas.

Decorations furnish proof which should be required that cities are not necessarily drab but become so through neglect. Each home in its own way and according to the needs and tastes of its occupants is attractive. The fact that once a year so many busy persons take the trouble to share the indoor attractiveness of their homes with the whole world by means of their outdoor lights and gaily decorated Christmas trees placed in the window should insure that the season's spirit in the heart of the Christmas spirit.

Coming 'Round To Mussolini

It may be taken for granted that all dictators are smart. But even among smart men some are smarter than others. Benito Mussolini apparently is one of the smartest. He is in power while most of his class were plotting in dark alleys. There is good reason to believe he will be in power long after some of his companions in the old Italian secret societies have fallen by the wayside.

Premier Mussolini's influence in Europe is out of proportion to the size and wealth of his country. Germany's Adolf Hitler, it is believed, finds it necessary to let Mussolini take the initiative in fascist strategy. Spain's Gen. Franco must look to Rome for a voice. At least even Joseph Stalin is dependent on Mussolini who has shown greater aptitude for statemanship than any of his contemporaries.

135,000 Workers

There are 135,000 production workers in the General Motors Corp. plants located in 11 different states.

That's a fact worth thinking about. There are 135,000 workers and thousands more in other corporations who are certain to be in the line of production in one way or another. It is a fact which should be represented in a certain way in dealings with management.

Realism of theory is it plain to everyone who has kept his eye on the scene? It is someone is taking a look at it when he is sure the light is breaking through the clouds of thousands of workers.

Among them are to be found many different opinions about the organization of the workers. Some believe in the organization of the workers. Some believe in the organization of the workers.

They have been getting down under the executive desk for extra secret conferences with the chief of staff. It is said they have been told that if they look down they could make their money count here and there and not get it from Mr. Morgenthau

Ohio Oddities
By R. C. HALL

In 1915 a father succeeded his son as governor of Ohio. Thomas W. Barry had been speaker of the house and succeeded to the governorship when Gov. Shannon died in 1915. His father, Horace Barry, was elected to succeed him in 1915.

To make it even more odd, the father was a Whig while the son was a Democrat, and when the Whig nominated Horace Barry for governor the Democrats lacked only a few votes of nominating him. David Tod was finally chosen by the Democrats so the prospect of a campaign in which father and son were pitted against each other did not materialize. As it was however, their political relationship was unique.

Marion Man's Election As President of Hotel Group Caps Long Career

C. A. Klunk Born in Hotel and Has Lived in Them for 45 Years.

His recent election as president of the Ohio Hotels association for 1937 came as the climax in the hotel career of Charles A. Klunk, owner of Hotel Marion, son of two generations of hotel men.

Mr. Klunk has lived in hotels for 45 years, was born in a hotel, the son of a hotel man, and both of his grandfathers were hotel operators. He estimates he has been in more than 500 hotel rooms.

As head of the 45-year-old Ohio Hotels association, Mr. Klunk presides over an organization of 120 members in cities throughout Ohio. The organization has headquarters in the Hotel Building in Columbus and retains a full-time executive secretary, Capt. H. Mowry.

A hotel operator for nearly 30 years, Mr. Klunk has seen many changes come about in the business of providing comfortable lodging for the traveling public.

Radical changes, he said, have come about as the result of the public becoming more "comfort conscious."

Travelers demand more of comfort along with the necessities and are willing to pay for them, Mr. Klunk said.

Mr. Klunk began his term as president of the state association on Jan. 1 following his election at the annual meeting in Cincinnati on Dec. 12. He is the second Marion man to head the association, George Lippincott having served in 1922.

Mr. Klunk was born at Central Hotel in Gettysburg, Pa., operated by his father, Martin

CHARLES A. KLUNK

Klunk, who later had a hotel at Houtdale, Pa.

On his father's side, his grandfather, Jacob Klunk, for 25 years had been in the hotel business in Pennsylvania and after the Civil War he operated the Eagle hotel in Gettysburg. Mr. Klunk's grandfather on his mother's side of the family, Jeremiah Eckenrode, operated the Empire hotel at Tyrone, Pa., for approximately 10 years.

Also, two of Mr. Klunk's uncles

His Father and Both Grandfathers Engaged in Same Business.

by marriage were hotel men. They were W. H. Dappenhof and H. H. Klunk, both of whom have visited Mr. Klunk in Marion. Both are dead.

First Job as Manager

Mr. Klunk's first managerial position in a hotel was in Hotel Duquesne in Allegheny, Pa., where he remained three years. Next, he was in charge of Hotel Myron at Tyrone, Pa., for three years, then at Hotel Termon in Warren, Ind. for six years. And later came to Marion and took over Hotel Ackerman which he operated for seven years. He has been the owner of Hotel Marion for the last 10 years. He was out of the hotel business for six years in Marion, serving during that period as president of the Dependable Oil Co.

Active in civic affairs, Mr. Klunk has served as a Chamber of Commerce director, president of Marion Civic club and Marion Auto club president.

Sports have been his hobby. He owned the Watson team of the Northern State league of Indiana in 1910, and is a follower of baseball and pugilism.

Many public officials have been among his guests at Hotel Marion. Among these were United States Senator Robert J. Bulkley, Governor Davey, Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati, Ohio Democratic national committeeman, the late Senator Simon D. Fess and the late Senator Willis.

Scabies.

Of the many disorders of the skin, few are more annoying than scabies. It is really an almost unbearable disorder.

Fortunately, the disease is not frequently met, as it was in former days. It was very common, indeed, when little was known about sanitation and hygiene. It always prevailed in institutions where the inmates were housed in close quarters. For this reason it was sometimes called "jail" itch. Since the old-time inmates suffered from it, scabies had another name, "ship" itch.

Speaking of names, it had another, one that was discouraging to the victim. It was rather commonly known as the seven-year itch. But this is not a proper term, because it does not last seven years.

The disease is caused by a parasite with a big name, the "acarus scabiei." As I have indicated, this is founded in crowded and unsanitary quarters. It rarely attacks anybody except those who are negligent about their personal hygiene. But once in a while one who is particularly careful about cleanliness may catch it.

The nature of the trouble is not suspected until the victim notices a marked itching of the skin. The wrists and the areas between the fingers, as well as the regions of the body where hair is normally found, are the parts usually involved. Sometimes the entire body shares the attack. The itching is most pronounced at night. It is so intolerable that the sufferer cannot keep from scratching, producing more and more irritation of the skin.

The parasite burrows into the skin, where the female deposits her eggs. If the skin is carefully examined with a magnifying glass, there can be seen a faint line ending with a grayish speck. This speck is the tiny parasite.

To get rid of this embarrassing and annoying trouble, a sulphur ointment is commonly prescribed. This is applied after a warm bath. A long coat of underwear should be worn during the night and discarded in the morning. Then a warm bath is taken with vigorous scrubbing, using a stiff brush and sulphur soap. The immediate purpose is to remove all of the ointment. This procedure should be repeated every night and morning until there is no remaining trace of the parasites.

Care should be taken by everybody to avoid contact with contaminated towels and clothing. Soiled linen used by the sufferer should be dealt with separately from that of other members of the family. Guard all the young children, especially the infants, against contracting this infection.

ESCAPE IF YOU CAN

BY FREDERICK JACKSON

She lived in the old Phelps mansion—one of the last surviving residences on Fifth Avenue. Outside her walls times had changed all most unbelievably, but inside everything seemed exactly as Bigelow vaguely remembered it.

The butler who took his hat and coat told him that she was waiting for him in the drawing room. He found her there in her big chair by the fire—a little lady in black who managed to look like a big lady somehow. Perhaps her calm dignity of bearing had something to do with that for she was 60 and then stood back to look at her as she waited with smiling brown eyes.

"Thank God," said he for something which doesn't change in a constantly changing world.

"But I do change," she answered. "My hair wasn't white when you went away. If you have forgotten that I'm you can't say I'm the same."

"I suppose what you mean is that I am old-fashioned," she nodded. "and of course it's true. Anne is a ways along me that I can be one of these dead younger. I've lived my 60 years quite gracefully and credibly. But I sit down my dear boy Walters and I don't expect tea, but I still have it. Everywhere else they have cocktails now."

"How nice murmured Bigelow. "I mean I like tea."

"That call it a hunch?"

"So you couldn't find out anything about Vronski?" she asked him.

"No. Nothing beyond the fact that there is such a man. I knew that," said Mrs. Phelps. "Well—it was sweet of you."

Bigelow looked at his aunt and said, "Thank God for something which doesn't change."

"An old woman with dyed hair and painted faces that poor outmoded figures squeezed and died into modern frocks. I don't want to seem any younger than I am. And I don't want to be any to inquire for me and even sweeter to come all this way to help me. Maybe you'll be able to learn more here than you could over there. You're my only hope."

"What makes you so sure he's in good?" asked Bigelow.

"I don't know exactly. We used to call it intuition but I think they call it a hunch nowadays. Just a kind of feeling you know. For one thing he too good looking and too charming. Oh much too charming."

"How did Anne meet him?"

"God knows," cried Mrs. Phelps. "but things have changed in America since my day. My dear introductions mean nothing any more. Anyone can meet anyone in the most casual fashion. Anne says that the way it ought to be in a republic. But I rather liked society. I know we are supposed to have classes in this country but we had them until the war and I liked it better. There were the old families who may have thought themselves a little better than the rest but they were able to set an example. Now the old families are gone only the names are left and nobody sets any example. Anne has a studio where she goes to paint and when the fancy strikes her she stays there all night. Alone—I am told—and I believe her. The odd thing is that nobody thinks anything of it. And she seems to be on friendly terms with prize-fighters, motion picture stars, restaurateurs—even with a man who leads a dance band in a cafe. Vronski seems a pleasant young man but not—precisely the sort of person my mother would have encouraged me to receive. And Anne is not an exception. Frankly I'm bewildered my dear. I sit here and think about the way the world is altering and I wonder what the future will be like and thank God

I shall not be here to know it. I try to adjust myself but I can't. I cling to the old order of things."

Walters came in followed by a soft-footed footman and they set out the tea things.

"I told Anne you were coming," said Mrs. Phelps. "and she may come in. Do you remember her as all?"

"Vaguely," he admitted. "Yellow curls, a button nose, fat legs in short socks."

Mrs. Phelps laughed. "Now—well—she's improved. Fortunately."

"Good," murmured Bigelow. "Perhaps I might be more tactful to pretend that you have forgotten her altogether," said her step-mother.

"She isn't really awful,"

"The butler having approved the arrangements, dismissed the footman with a slight inclination of his gray head and departed as gustily closing the door behind him."

"We won't wait for Anne," said Mrs. Phelps reaching out a small, pale, wrinkled hand for the teapot. Bigelow thought how like his mother's hand it was.

"You don't think she'll come in?" asked Bigelow as she began to pour.

"Her decision in the matter is absolutely unpredictable. Is she as pretty as she is willful?"

"She isn't really willful," said Mrs. Phelps pausing to consider him thoughtfully. "It's simply that she is an individual with definite likes and dislikes, definite ideas on most subjects, and a definite determination to retain her liberty of thought and action. I know that that is so, she added whimsically because she has explained it to me so many times. She continued to pour the tea."

"Will she succeed in retaining her liberty of thought and action if she marries Count Vronski?" asked Bigelow.

"She seems to think so. He subscribes to all of her convictions. Philip Whitelaw didn't. He had a way of smiling at her that I can well believe was irritating. And when her behavior seemed to him too unconventional he permitted himself to criticize her. The lordly male attitude. I don't see how popular with young women as it used to be."

"I've noticed that," grinned Bigelow.

"Why haven't you thought of marrying?" asked his aunt moving the silver plate of scones to ward him.

"I know. You are contented as you are. But one can't have children without marrying. At least not yet. I suppose that innovation will become popular too presently."

"Bigelow and Anne meet tomorrow and a dinner date is set."

Marry-Go-Round
BY HELEN ROWLAND

YOUTH EXTENSION

The primary secret of youth extension is the care of the heart. Keeping it young, tender, glowing and alive.

Whether the heart is an organ a muscle or an emotional machine it is the most vital and important thing in life. When it hardens or goes dead either physically or emotionally, you can order your whole chair for you have reached the end of youth. When your heart can no longer beat high with hope, love or enthusiasm, you might just as well make the first payment on your tombstone, plant the ivy and settle down in some quiet corner well out of the way of the live ones and wait for the wagon.

Perhaps that is the way Edward VIII felt when he chose the privilege of loving and living in preference to a purple velvet throne and a crown that was too tight to allow for an emotion or a personal enthusiasm.

Hearts are very much out of date in these days. We scarcely ever mention them. They are supposed to be found only in morose or in trashy novels or on paper valentines. Any spontaneous expression of sentiment or enthusiasm is regarded as naive and unsophisticated. It is so much smarter to appear skeptical and hard-boiled. And we live in the unholy fear of making fools of our selves.

So we choke back the fountain of youth. For next to chewing gum or wet paint there is nothing that sticks to you quite so persistently as a reputation for having made a fool of yourself. But not half so many of our follies are due to a soft heart as are due to a soft head.

When a prominent woman in her forties or fifties makes a frumpy spectacle of herself by sprawling blithely to the stars with a boy half her age, she knows that it is because she's so soft-headed and full of vanity.

And when a prominent and successful man, who should have reached years of discretion, permits himself to be dragged to the altar by a baby-eyed young thing with a talent for gas-dancing, he imagines that it is because he's so soft-headed, trusting young man. But it's not. It's because he's such a big, overgrown, soft-headed, such a big half-witted person.

If you can keep your heart and head young, you can keep your life young. You can keep your "young-out-of-age" feeling out of your life.

Married Comrades

BY ADELE GARRISON

Katherine and Madge learn Meredith May survives

At the words "my darling" from Hal Meredith's battered lips Katherine's face which had grown gray at his demand, "Do you want me to live?" with the tragic implication behind it flooded with crimson again.

With characteristic delicacy and the poise of their profession, neither physicians nor nurses gave the slightest indication that they had heard the words. But Katherine knew as well as that their attention was intrigued as to just what lay behind this feathery reunion.

"But was it to be that? I can't believe it after that climactic call of Katherine's exhortation. 'You're alive and you're going to live.'"

There was something in the demeanor of the doctor and nurses, something elusive, inscrutable but nevertheless significant which gave her the impression that they too had been imbued with the spirit of that call and were cherishing a faint hope that even in the face of the thousand to one odds against the brilliant alienist they might be able to pull him back from death.

Hal Meredith

It was not in Katherine to let anything even so embarrassing as a declaration as Hal had just made interfere with a professional duty. And it was with a steady voice that she told him, "I am going to give you a hypodermic, and he hands were equal to the task. He bared his arm, prepared the syringe and the needle and the medicine."

She kept the instrument up to the little table behind her which the second nurse immediately whisked away in the same noiseless fashion as she had employed in bringing it to Katherine. In the same second Miss Haskell obeyed a signal from Dr. Gates brought up a chair close behind Katherine and with gentle determined pressure pulled her into it without disturbing the tasp of Katherine's hands upon the unyielding one of Hal's outside the covers.

And then again there was silence in the room as we all waited for the hypodermic to take effect. The hall of doors was still sterile and being ministered to by Miss Dr. Meredith non-resistant to the working of the drug but I was sure that the strong tender clasp of Katherine's fingers and the knowledge of her presence were more efficacious to quiet him than any drug no matter how potent.

It was half an hour—I found myself looking at my wrist watch every two minutes before I saw Dr. Gates gesture to Miss Haskell and away the nurse in her turn to check Katherine on the arm having pinned her attentions to Katherine's face. Her eyes were firmly closed. Her lips were tightly shut.

Katherine bent lower over the bed.

"Hal," she said a tiny and then as there was no reply she spoke in a louder tone.

"Hal. Can you hear me?"

But the opiate had carried him completely away from all consciousness of her and she looked up at Miss Haskell and said with professional composure.

"He's completely under I think."

"Try taking your hands away, one at a time. Dr. Gates suggested that Katherine obey."

There was no resistance and she still in her professional manner stepped back while Dr. Gates stooping over the unconscious man made different tests in rapid succession. When he finally stood up there was something indefinable in his manner that thought me without looking it in my feet with my hand at my throat.

It is too soon to say yet anything positively as yet. But I think I may tell you Miss Dr. Meredith that thanks to you I am able to say we have a fighting chance for Dr. Meredith's life.

Katherine's face was drained of color as she listened but she did not swoon as I feared she would do. She closed her eyes for a second and steadied herself by grasping the chair back. Then she opened her eyes and looked at me.

"And now will you tell me please what you wish me to do?" she asked.

MOTOR PARTS FIRM AT WORK

Arthur J. Willey of Marion, vice president; Attorney Thomas H. Moore of Columbus, legal representative, and Ben Jones, also a former employee of the Jones company, production manager. President Jones will also have charge of industrial sales and engineering.

Officials of the new concern have placed eight men at work turning out the first order for a supply of drive shafts and other truck-tractor parts to be delivered to the Tate-Roth-Heath Co. of Plymouth.

Negotiations are also under way for additional orders, which are expected to keep a force of men busy for some time.

According to President Jones, the company has developed a new flexible plate, to be placed on the market under the trade name of Flex-cushion disc, for use in motor vehicle clutches. Other products of the company will be clutches, gears and reduction units while plans are under way to add small hydraulic lifts to the line in the near future.

The new company is located at the junction of the Pennsylvania and Chesapeake and Ohio railroads. The chattels of the Jones company were sold at sheriff's auction, Sept. 26, 1934, to the Jones Machine & Tool Co. of Cincinnati. Recently the Interstate purchased the assets of the former plant from the Cincinnati firm and a number of improvements have been made on the building and in the plant.

Mr. and Mrs. William Earlywine of Edison spent New Year's day with Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Smith.

Dr. and Mrs. Herman Chandler, Cloyce and Martha Chandler of Mansfield, Mr. and Mrs. William McDonald and son, Mrs. Maude Lehner, Arthur Watley, and Ned McBride were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Anna McBride, north of town.

A. J. Fields returned Thursday after several week's visit in Chicago and Elkhart, Ind. Mr. and Mrs. Reid Fields and daughter Madeline of Elkhart, accompanied him and spent the week-end here.

Mr. and Mrs. N. D. Hill and daughter Marianna spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Loren Spies in Bucyrus.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Seiler of Marion, and Rev. and Mrs. E. M. Druley were dinner guests New Year's night of Mrs. Laura Pittman.

EVERY WOMAN FACES THIS QUESTION

How do I look to other people? So many women risk their beauty by neglect of constipation. It often causes loss of pep, sallow skins, dull eyes, poor complexions.

Yet common constipation can be ended so easily. Just eat two table-spoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with milk or fruits every day, three times daily in severe cases. This delicious ready-to-eat cereal supplies the "bulk" needed to exercise the system—and vitamin B to help tone up the intestinal tract.

Within the body, ALL-BRAN absorbs more than twice its weight in water, gently sponging out the intestines. It never causes the artificial action of pills and drugs, that often prove ineffective.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, you see, is a food—not a medicine. It relieves common constipation the way Nature intended—so its results are safe. Buy it at your grocer's. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in Battle Creek.
